14. "Jameson Green: Fiends' New Moon Ballet" at Derek Eller Gallery, New York

Hunter College grad Jameson Green is having his first solo show at Derek Eller. Drawing inspiration from Old Masters, Picasso, and comic books, Green's works are theatrical depictions of life and death. In A Young Dreamer's Salute, a Christ-like figure is thrown into a river by a group of men in straw hats under fiery orange skies. While the styles of Post Impressionism and Cubism are clearly present, the artist's punchy style is uniquely his own. The metal nails that appear in most of the paintings are loaded with Catholic symbolism yet also bring to mind the gruesome cartoon that were popular in the 1990s.
