13. "Moon Salon" at Derek Eller Gallery, New York

Derek Eller Gallery presents J.J. Manford's new paintings in this striking solo exhibition. The luminous paintings exclusively depict interiors, usually containing an animal companion, framed art on the walls, and a small glimpse of the outside world. Though no figures are present in these paintings, Manford manages to give an impression of a lived in, comfortable room, as if the inhabitant just momentarily stepped out of the scene. "By curating his scenes with art- historical works or poster reproductions, along with folk and outsider art, his own paintings, record albums, etc., Manford can vicariously inhabit this idyllic and culturally vibrant domestic scene of his own making," according to the gallery statement.

Location: Derek Eller Gallery, 300 Broome Street, New York
